KIM KARDASHIAN MAY INSIST THAT HER FAMOUS FANNY IS NATURAL, BUT PICTURES ARE WORTH A THOUSAND DENIALS!

KIM'S DERRIÈRE DISASTER!

IS Kim Kardashian trying to keep up with... herself? The reality star wants the world to see her as a shrewd businesswoman and not just a sex symbol, but judging by her latest enhancement, it's clear that Kim feels compelled to make her body the center of attention — even if it means looking downright bizarre. Kim, 35, showed off a brand-new backside on April 23 in Miami, and even her most ardent fans were left cringing at her outrageous curves.

"Her backside looked huge," says an eyewitness. "Everyone was saying how unnatural, lumpy and weird it looked — there's no way that is the result of diet or time in the gym."

Since finding fame in 2007, the selfie queen, who got breast implants in her early 20s, has reportedly undergone liposuction, at least one nose job, Botox, lip injections and clearly some sort of rear-end augmentation. Two top NYC plastic surgeons weigh in on what Kim still claims is Mother Nature's handiwork.

Kim's rep denied she had any work done, but "this kind of transformation is not at all naturally plausible," explains NYC-based facial plastic surgeon Dr. Michelle Yagoda, and Dr. Norman Butt Seriously...

Kim famously used an X-ray to prove she doesn't have booty implants, but fat injections don't show up on an X-ray, K.K.!

Rowe agrees. "Kim definitely had fat transfers, which look more natural than implants, and most likely fillers in her buttocks as well," says Dr. Rowe, cautioning that Kim may soon suffer for her vanity. "The size of her butt can certainly lead to lower back problems."

But Kim isn't concerned as long as her husband, Kanye West, is happy. "Considering his own mom died from complications following plastic surgery, you'd think he'd be against it," says a family friend. "But he thinks she's sexy as hell. If her family is looking for someone to intervene, it certainly won't be him." ★
