PLASTIC SURGERY

Overplumped cheeks! Facial paralysis! Crooked lips!
These recently altered stars looked much better before getting nipped, filled and/or tucked

PAM'S TOO PUFFY

Pamela Anderson's cartoonishly overarched eyebrow is a telltale sign of badly placed Botox, which she claimed to have sworn off in 2015, says NYC plastic surgeon Dr. Michelle Yagoda. The former Baywatch star, 52, also likely had a face-lift – "her jawline looks tight" – and she's gone overboard with cheek and lip fillers.

"She's a victim of 'more is better.'"

PRISCILLA'S SURGERY REGRETS

Priscilla Presley is sporting some "intense scarring" around her mouth, says Dr. Yagoda, who blames "a bad skin resurfacing procedure or filler placed too close to the skin in the nasolabial folds. She's no stranger to subpar work: The actress, 74, once revealed she had low-grade silicone injections put into her face by an unlicensed surgeon!

LA TOYA'S OUT OF CONTROL

La Toya Jackson's new appearance is raising eyebrows, and not just her own! Her deer-in-the-headlights look comes courtesy of "bad" Botox, says Dr. Yagoda, who points out the star's right eyebrow is up higher than the left. That's not the only issue – the 63-year-old's likely altered nose is "way too thin," says Dr. Yagoda, "and probably poorly functioning."
